The Adas Fund 2014

“Adas Israel has been our home for more than 35 years, and we care deeply about the next 35 and beyond.”
—Toni & David Bickart
(2014 Adas Fund Chairs)

We are honored to chair The Adas Fund (formerly the Kol Nidre Appeal) this year. There is indeed so much to celebrate at Adas Israel—from our inspiring and energetic clergy and staff, to our multifaceted education programs, to our vibrant and spiritual worship experiences, to the meaningful friendships and support that bind together so many of our congregants. We joined Adas when our son was ready for the Gan, and we’ve been learning ever since.

Adas Israel Congregation plays an important role in our lives and in the life of our community. For more than 145 years, our congregation has provided moving religious services, personal life cycle events handled with care... that is quiet, yet profound. Ruth's love is the love that is all about commitment.

Many Jewish people jokingly say that “love” is not a word you hear all that often in synagogues. That joke reveals a poignant misconception about Judaism—that we are a religion only of the intellect; that ours is a religion that soberly moves from the mind to action. Other religions may talk a lot of love, but Judaism, so the conception goes, is beyond nebulous abstractions of the heart.

This unfortunate portrayal of Judaism leaves out perhaps the central dimension of Jewish identity for millennia: It's all about love.

The Torah begins with God creating the world. This begs the question: Why? Our ancient rabbis tell us that linking the story of the Jewish people with the origins of it all reveals that God not only loves the Jewish people, that God not only created the world to give us the Torah, but that God did the whole endeavor as an act of love itself. The universe exists, as it were, because God wanted to give something to us, something so precious that it required an extraordinary act of Creation. The Book of Genesis continues with the stories of the Israelite patriarchs and their struggles, and the undying loyalty and commitment of God to them and their progeny. By the time we get to the Book of Exodus, God reveals the Ineffable Name to Moses. In our prayers today, we simply refer to this name as “Adonai” (Our Lord). Our rabbis teach us that this name was hitherto unknown in the world; it is the name of Ultimate Compassion. The Exodus story shows us that God’s compassion was so fierce, it was with a mighty hand and outstretched arm that God brought us from Egypt.

And this brings us to Shavuot. Our midrashic tradition teaches us that the giving of the Torah at Mount Sinai was really a wedding. The Israelites, the “damsel in distress” who God rescued from Egypt, was now the “bride” to God’s “groom.” The thunderous clouds were the chuppah, and the ketubah was none other than the Torah itself. The whole epic story of the world leads up to this: A wedding! A simcha! A celebration of love!

It is very significant that the love of God for Israel at Sinai is not the puppy love of two young lovers. It is not rash or tempestuous. It is entirely thoughtful and balanced. It is wholly committed and undying. It is the love that Ruth has for Naomi and for Boaz. In this, our tradition brings us to a profound understanding of the meaning of love itself: Love is as love does. Love, indeed, is deeply felt, but it is not limited to just a feeling. Love is a way of life. Love is all about dedication to something beyond our own desires or wants, transcending our past hurts and travails. God, as a literary character in the Torah reflected through characters like Naomi, models the power of love to transform the world. Or rather, it is love itself—understood as a kind of lifelong spiritual practice of embodied commitment—that enables us to bring ourselves, and the whole world, into harmony with the great mysterious purpose of Creation itself.

In Judaism, the form of that love is our commitment to our people, to our heritage, to our mitzvot, to our generations. So we are very much a religion all about love! It is true that we are also a highly intellectual people. But it is incorrect to dismiss the role of love in public Jewish discourse. It is, rather, through our intellect that we seek to discern the mind of God—or, really, the heart of God—so that we will be the most loving human beings we can be. This Shavuot, may we proudly commit ourselves to the love that our Judaism stands for! —Chag Same’ach!

“Yiddish theater was the soul of the Jewish people. Wherever Jews lived, there was theater—entertaining, teaching, reminding us who we are. We embrace its treasures as a part of our past, our present, and our future.”

I am so very excited to bring Zalmen Mlotek here on Sunday, June 1, for an unforgettable evening celebrating the magic of the Yiddish theater.

As a student in cantorial school, I learned about the Yiddish theater and was intrigued! There was, and still is, only one remaining professional Yiddish theater in the country—the Folksbiene Yiddish Theater. As a lover of musical theater, this seemed to me to be an amazing amalgamation of theater and Jewish culture—and a way for a shomer Shabbat cantorial student to make it to an off-Broadway stage!

Zalmen Mlotek was the magical man who held the key to the world of Yiddish theater. Not wanting to risk being turned down for an appointment, I went to see him unannounced. When I told him I wanted to be in the Yiddish theater, he asked me if I spoke Yiddish. I did not, but I promised him that I would learn quickly if he would only give me a chance.

And a chance he certainly did give me, along with the most valuable coaching and opportunities of a lifetime. For the next three years, I was immersed in a world of Yiddish plays, shows, classes, and even a traveling troupe of young professionals. I learned that this amazing art form can reach all—young and old alike, and I made it a part of my life’s mission as a hazzan to help keep this music alive and revitalize it for the future.

To do that, I need you! Come give Yiddish theater a chance as Zalmen speaks, sings, and plays, bringing the magic of Yiddish theater to life.

The event begins at 7:00 pm. RSVP at www.adasisrael.org/musicalmoments for our concert and ice cream reception.

Who Runs This Shul, Anyway?

Did it begin with Job that we have many lay leaders? Moses was the sole judge, but his father-in-law advised him to delegate that work broadly. Why? As sole judge Moses would become exhausted and, no less, the people would become exhausted of him. Too much of a good thing wears thin, particularly when that good thing is one individual. A community will eventually want to control its destiny. As I see it, from Moses’s eventual delegation we learn that the community is to govern itself.

Wait, don’t turn the page! Discussion of communal governance is not dry. To understand our governance is to understand important aspects of not just this synagogue, but the roles of clergy and lay leaders in Judaism itself.

Dispersion began with judges and extended into other realms. From Moses the Kohenim assumed ritual leadership and then the rabbis. At Adas Israel, Rabbi Gil Steinlauf is not only our teacher and spiritual leader, but also the synagogue’s mara d’atra—the decisive governing authority over all matters ritual and religious. Rabbi Steinlauf reports to the Board of Directors, but as is customary, the Board has ceded religious governance to our senior rabbi.

But wait, there’s more. Beyond ritual, our community has an array of operations and functions. Just as Moses appointed judges and later Jewish communities had their own civil governance, today’s lay leaders guide much of the civil side of the Adas Israel community. Let’s take a look at the breadth of governance tasks.

Adas Israel has a host of budget, endowment, fundraising, and other financial matters to oversee; schools to operate; clergy and other personnel resources to recruit and retain; member engagement and services to provide; and spiritual programs to conduct. These include continuing education, visiting the infirm, musical programs, operating and sustaining our physical infrastructure, and planning strategically to help ensure our future. Lay leaders—guided spiritually by our clergy and assisted skillfully by our able staff—oversee this array of functions and operations.

How do we do this? The Trustees hold “bare” title to all of our assets for the benefit of the synagogue. The Board of Directors holds authority to manage every aspect of the synagogue. Board officers, such as the president, various vice presidents, treasurer, and secretary, act in the Board’s stead when it is not in session, but are subject to its direction.

Several committees implement programs and advise the officers and Board. These include religious practices, personnel, finance (budget, investment, and audit), membership engagement, social action, building & grounds, inclusion, musical moments, and continuing education. Special ad hoc committees search for senior placements such as rabbis, executive director, and director of education. Every function in the synagogue is subject to this governance, and well over a hundred members

Leah Chanin Selected as 2014 Yad Hakavod Honoree

The Adas Israel Yad Hakavod Committee is pleased to announce the selection of Leah Chanin as this year’s worthy Yad Hakavod honoree.

The Adas Israel Yad Hakavod Award was created in 1997 to honor a member of the congregation who has distinguished himself or herself through service to the congregation and its members.

Leah Chanin is a woman who gets things done. Ask anyone who has ever served on a committee with her, seen her prepare for Pesach, or tried to keep up with her in aerobics class. Before coming to Washington, she lived in Macon, GA, in a place and time when only some women went to college and most did not work outside the home. But not Leah. In addition to raising four children, caring for a “demanding” husband, and keeping a kosher home, she was professor of law and dean of Mercer Law School and the author of five books about legal history and legal research. She credits much of her career success to being able to neglect her children with full faith that they would turn out just fine. (Helicopter parents, take heed!)

When Leah moved to Washington in 1992, she was looking for a conservative shul. Two of her (successful, responsible, no-worse-for-the-wear adult) children were already members here. She had never belonged to a large congregation before and wasn’t sure she was going to like it or fit in. She soon realized it has enormous benefits—wonderful staff, clergy, and congregants—and began to come regularly. Six years later, Sandy Mendelson asked her to serve on the Education Director search committee and Toni Bickart appointed her to several committees—education, bylaws, catering, and others. She was also on the library committee for seven years. Leah recently became chair of the Mikvah Committee, also serving as a dedicated mikvah guide. In addition, she served as assistant secretary and as VP for fundraising under Russell Smith. Leah can be found staffing the Adas gift shop several hours every week, in addition to the time she spends learning with the rabbis. She became an adult bat mitzvah with Rabbi Miller in 1996. Three generations of the Chanin family are members of Adas, and she anchors them all. It is a privilege to count Leah as one of our members.

This award recognizes someone who has served beyond the call of duty to make Adas Israel a better place. The first Yad Hakavod Award was presented in 1997 to Sophie Silfen. Other recipi-

Please join us June 11 at 7:30 pm when we honor Leah Chanin as our Yad Hakavod honoree at our annual congregational meeting, followed by a dessert reception in her honor.

High Holy Day Packets Arriving Soon

Rosh Hashanah begins the evening of Wednesday, September 24

Planning for the 2014 High Holy Days is well underway, and packets of information will arrive at your home by the end of the month.

We look forward to welcoming the new year with our Adas Israel family in our newly renovated spaces, including the renewed Charles E. Smith Sanctuary, Bernard & Sarah Gewirz Beit Am, and the Dr. Avraham Biran Beit Midrash and Kogod Chapel.

Rabbi Steinlauf, Rabbi Feinberg, Cantor Brown, and Rabbi Holtzblatt will be joined during the holidays by Rabbi/Cantor Mark Novak and Michael Leifman. Rabbi Holtzblatt and Elie Greenberg will lead our new “Return Again” service on Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur, and outdoors on Kol Nidre. We also look forward to welcoming Rabbi Kerrith Rosenbaum, our new director of education, who will lead High Holy Day family services.

We also welcome back Robyn Helzner to our two Gan Family Services and look forward to our self-led Traditional Minyan Services. Naomi Malka, our ritual coordinator, will organize and read Torah during the holidays.

Remember, to simplify the holiday ticket process, if you only want tickets for the people in your household in the Kay Hall, Gewirz Beit Am (Traditional Egalitarian Minyan), Family Service, or Charles E. Smith Sanctuary, they will be sent to you automatically; no ticket request form is required.

The ticket request form only needs to be returned if you have historic dedicated seats in the Charles E. Smith Sanctuary or if you want to order extra seats for family and guests. If you are a dedicated seat holder in the Charles E. Smith Sanctuary, you will need to request the number of your seats that you intend to use for the coming holidays (two seats are included in membership; additional seats will be charged to your account). Members also will be able to reserve nondedicated seats (with limited availability) in the Charles E. Smith Sanctuary. These seats can be requested on your seat request forms in the High Holy Day booklet. Please call or e-mail Elinor Tattar, 202-362-4433 or elinor.tattar@adasisrael.org, with any questions.

New This Year

Please note that this year, after the sermons in the Charles E. Smith Sanctuary, a seat that has not been occupied will be considered available for seating. This applies to both dedicated and reserved seats.

We thank our committee members and coordinators for sharing their time and their holidays so others can have a meaningful High Holy Day season. Watch your mail for the High Holy Day packet. We look forward to celebrating the most exciting time of the year with our Adas family. Flor all times, came together to hear the resounding proclamation of the Ten Commandments! With that dramatic backdrop in mind, on the first night of Shavuot (this year, Tuesday night, June 3), Jews throughout the world observe the centuries-old custom of conducting an all-night vigil dedicated to Torah learning and preparation for receiving the Torah anew the next morning. Please join us for a multitextured, experiential evening of Jewish learning on Shavuot, featuring many different worship and learning options for every flavor of Jewish experience.

The festival of Shavuot commemorates the proclamation of the Ten Commandments at Mt. Sinai and is known in the Jewish tradition as z’m’an matan torateinu, “The season of the giving of our Torah.”

The Rabbis speak of Shavuot as the crowning climax of the Exodus. Until the first Shavuot, the liberated slaves in the wilderness were free in a physical sense only. At Sinai, the Jewish people used the freedom obtained on Passover to consecrate themselves as “a kingdom of priests and a holy nation.”

Moreover, to make clear that the teachings of the Torah revealed at Sinai are for all humankind, the Book of Ruth, the story of a woman who voluntarily accepted Judaism in place of idolatry, is customarily read on the second day of Shavuot. In the Megillah of Ruth are found the glowing words of faith she spoke to her mother-in-law Naomi: “Entreat me not to leave you for wherever you go I will go, and wherever you lodge, I will lodge; your people will be my people and your God, my God.”

Shavuot literally means “weeks” as it occurs precisely seven weeks after the second day of Passover. The 49 days between Passover and Shavuot are known as s’firat ha-omer (the counting of the omer), reminiscent of the days when farmers brought a measure (omer) of their newly harvested grain to the Temple.

The Shavuot holiday is also known as chag ha-bikurim, the Festival of the First Fruits, and chag ha-katzir, the Feast of the Harvest. At this time, farmers went on a pilgrimage to the Temple in Jerusalem, bringing with them offerings of their barley harvest and the first fruits of their orchards. As an echo of this ancient agricultural celebration, it is customary to decorate the synagogue and home with flowers and plants. During Shavuot dairy dishes are traditionally eaten because the Torah is often compared to milk and honey, having the nourishment of the former and the sweetness of the latter.

Below are a few suggestions of ways you can make Shavuot a real celebration. Though it is a brief holiday, it is filled with joy and profound meaning.

1. Light Yom Tov candles and prepare a festival meal on both evenings of the holiday.
2. Invite guests to join in your celebration of Shavuot and eat dairy dishes.
3. Attend the Tikun Leyl Shavuot; it is customary to stay up all night on the eve of Shavuot studying the Torah. (See schedule below.)
4. Hear the Ten Commandments read in the synagogue on the first day of Shavuot.
5. First day of Shavuot, Wednesday, June 4, service begins at 9:30 am; combined Charles E. Smith Sanctuary Service and Traditional Egalitarian Minyan Service
   Second day of Shavuot, Thursday, June 5, service begins at 9:15 am, Yizkor at 11:00 am; combined Charles E. Smith Sanctuary Service and Traditional Egalitarian Minyan Service.
6. Read the Book of Ruth.
7. Light a yahrzeit candle in memory of family members who have died, give tzedakah in their name, and attend service on the second day to recite the Yizkor Memorial Prayers.

Accomplishing a Great Deal and Planning More
Making a difference in Israel

A recent poll provided the most recent evidence of Israel’s yearning for many entryways into Judaism. Today, more than half of Israelis polled support official government and Rabbinate recognition for both Masorti/Conservative and Reform Judaism. That is a significant sign that Israel society desires to be fully inclusive for all. It shows that a state with control over religion only with the ultra-Orthodox is out of sync with its people.

As Masorti and our pluralistic allies continue to advocate for true equality for and recognition of all forms of Judaism—in line with what Israelis desire—MERCAZ plays a key role in ensuring that Israel continues to progress toward a pluralistic and equal society for all.

This change in Israeli public opinion did not happen by accident. It has built through outreach and education supported by MERCAZ, the kehillot, and our communities. Please support our efforts so we can continue this vitally important work.

Now is the time to make it happen. Champion this ongoing effort by joining MERCAZ.

Sign up to become a MERCAZ member through the Adas Israel check-off MERCAZ membership system.

Happy Birthday, Pauline Goldberg

100 years old this June and a member of Adas Israel since 1953!

A beloved member of our Adas Israel family since 1953, Pauline was born in New York City on June 14, 1914. She has devoted many years to our congregation and to working with Jewish organizations all over the country. Pauline was even president of her local B’nai Brith chapter for several years. She and her late husband, Yale, joined Adas Israel in 1953. Her son, Lester Goldberg, and daughter, Marsha Boymel (a former Sisterhood president), are also members. Please join us wishing a heartfelt Yom Huledet Sameach (Happy Birthday) to our dear friend, Pauline. We are fortunate to have such a dedicated member of our community.
Upcoming Events

Taste of Tanach, Tuesday June 3, 10:00–11:00 am: This is our last session for 5774. Sisterhood invites everyone to join in studying Torah with Rabbi Steinlauf in the Biran Beit Midrash. Closing Event, Sunday, June 8, 1:00 pm offers something sweet to conclude the year.

Our speaker is well-known author, lecturer, and food editor, Sheilah Kaufman, who will discuss the “History of Jews and Chocolate.” She will describe how those Sephardic Jews who left Spain and Portugal in 1492 and settled in the Caribbean shaped the chocolate industry, and how chocolate shaped the Jews. This free program includes a chocolate-tasting and cooking demonstration.

The business portion of the meeting will honor Lisa Kleine for her three-year tenure as Sisterhood president. In addition, our incoming Board and President-Elect, Marcy Feuerstein, will be inducted into office.

Women’s League Convention, July 17–20: Join in the WLCJ Shabbaton and Convention focused on Kodesh v’Chol: Balancing the Sacred and the Every Day, to be held at the Hanover Marriott in Whippany, NJ. Complete information can be found at wlcj.org. Look for outstanding speakers, a totally out-of-the-ordinary Shabbat experience, hands-on workshops, first-timer discounts, and more.

Sisterhood Makes a Minyan—and Challenges the Rest of the Adas Community to Do the Same!
We asked for 10. More than DOUBLE that number came (some of whom are pictured here). Responding to an urgent plea from some of our sisters that the Thursday night minyan was struggling mightily, Sisterhood arrived in force on Thursday, April 10, alleviating the problem for at least one night. The look on the faces of the Thursday night regulars said it all. Accustomed to anxiously counting as each person straggled through the door, always hoping for 10 (but often topping out at eight), participants were amazed as sisters and their friends streamed in.

But a one-night stand will not solve the problem. The purpose of this event was two-fold: to shine a light on this continuing need in the Adas community and, more important, to encourage more people to come, even if it is as little as once a month. Toward that end, Sisterhood is issuing a challenge to all of the other groups at Adas. Bring your own 10 to a morning or evening minyan, take a picture, and everyone in the 10 will receive a $5.00 gift certificate to the Ruth & Simon Albert Sisterhood Gift Shop.

Is it a bribe? Yes. Is it money well spent? Double yes. Being present so fellow congregants can say Kaddish is important to the very fabric and fiber of our community. At some point in our lives, we will all need the minyan. Will it be there for you? Only if each of us makes the commitment to make a difference, and just shows up.

Sisterhood Shabbat Keeps on Giving
When JTS professor of Talmud Dr. Marjorie Lehman arrived at Adas as Sisterhood Shabbat scholar last February, she enjoyed a grand tour of the synagogue, including the renovated Charles E. Smith Sanctuary, the Biran Beit Midrash, the mikvah, and, of course, the Rose Ruth Freudberg Memorial Sisterhood Library.

Following her visit, which was received with great acclaim, Dr. Lehman presented the library with a copy of her book, The En Yaaqov: Jacob ibn Habib’s Search for Faith in the Talmudic Corpus. The plate reads: “A gift from author and Adas Israel Sisterhood scholar, Dr. Marjorie Lehman, commemorating Sisterhood Shabbat February 8, 2014.” A lovely and meaningful gesture. Thank you!

Welcoming New Adas Members
In April, the Sisterhood Membership Committee telephoned some 90 new Adas women members to introduce them to the organization. The feedback was positive, with comments such as, “I’m impressed with your outreach and feel most welcome.” Sisterhood is extending its complimentary “welcome membership” through June 2015 for all women who joined the congregation since January 2013. As a bonus, these new members will receive a 10% discount on any item from the Ruth & Simon Albert Sisterhood Gift Shop as well as The Adas Israel Sis-and sensitivity, education for children and adults, innovative new programs and offerings, and caring social action projects.

We are proud of the fact that no one is turned away from our synagogue and no student denied a Jewish education because of cost. To maintain this policy, we need the support of our entire community.

Please join us this year by making a contribution to the Adas Fund. With your help, we’ll be able to provide an exciting year of synagogue programming. We can expand our Young Professional offerings, continue the robust full- and part-day options at our early childhood center, Gan HaYeled, give our new director of education the resources she needs to make the Estelle & Melvin Gelman Religious School the best in the area, and expand our adult education offerings.

The gift you make through the Adas Fund will enable more than 800 people to join together as a holy community each Shabbat. It will support excellent teachers in our schools; enhance adult education and programming; deliver kosher meals to elderly and sick people; provide a cushion for those who cannot afford full synagogue dues; give our schools vital resources; help support Anne Frank House, a homeless shelter; and maintain the only non-Orthodox mikvah in the DC Metro area. None of this is possible without your support.

So we urge each of you to invest in our community at the level you can best afford. Letters with pledge cards and return envelopes will arrive at your home shortly. You can also contribute online at www.adasisrael.org. We seek 100% participation and trust that we’ll be able to include you as a contributor during this significant stage in the growth and renewal of our congregation. It’s an exciting time in the life of our community and it’s up to us to help it grow.

Please feel free to contact us or Vice President for Development Pamela Reeves at any time.

—Warmly and gratefully,

Toni & David Bickart (2014 Adas Fund Chairs)

Maia Kotelanski, June 7
Maia, daughter of Marina Feldman and Jorge Kotelanski, is a sixth grader at the Jewish Primary Day School. She began her Jewish education at Gan HaYeled. Maia celebrates her simcha with her brother and sister, grandparents Rosa Kotelanski and Berta and Carlos Feldman, and other family and friends who come from near and far to celebrate with her. At this special time she thinks with love about her grandfather, Bernardo Kotelanski, z”l. For her mitzvah project, Maia is volunteering with the Jewish Foundation for Group Homes, which works with people with disabilities.

Samuel Ikenson, June 21
Samuel (Sammy), son of Daniel and Kristin Ikenson, is a seventh grader at Thomas Pyle Middle School and has been a student at the Estelle & Melvin Gelman Religious School since the first grade. He celebrates his bar mitzvah with his brother and sister and grandparents Joel and Judy Verter and Fred and Donna Ikenson. Sammy’s mitzvah project is devoted to a friend of the family who suffered a massive stroke and is now living in a full-service care facility in Florida. Along with visiting this family friend over spring break, Sammy will be working to raise funds and facilitate awareness of the lifelong impact strokes can have.

Life Cycle Information
When Death Occurs
When death occurs, please call the synagogue office, 202-362-4433, so that we may inform the clergy and be of assistance. During business hours, ask for Carole Klein. After business hours, a staff member on call may be reached by calling the synagogue office at the number above and pressing “2” to be connected automatically, or by calling the answering service, 301-421-5271, which will page the staff member on call. On Yom Tov and Shabbat, even though detailed funeral arrangements should not be made, a staff member on call can still be reached at 301-421-5271.

Cemetery Hours
Visitation at the Adas Israel Cemetery is by appointment only. Contact Carole Klein at the synagogue office (202-362-4433) to schedule a visit.

Adas Israel Community Mikvah
Our mikvah is a sacred space where Jews can mark life transitions with powerful physical ritual. Immersing in a mikvah connects the body to the water cycle of our planet and to the sources of life. People visit our mikvah to observe the mitzvah of monthly immersion; to celebrate simchat; to find strength during a difficult time; to pray for healing; to reflect on the meaning of becoming a bride, groom, or bar or bat mitzvah; to convert to Judaism; and to prepare physically and spiritually for chagim. To learn more about our mikvah or to schedule an appointment, contact Naomi Malka, 202-841-8776 or mikvah@adasisrael.org. For more information, visit adasisrael.org/mikvah.

Making Mikvah Meaningful
by Naomi Malka
I was a Hebrew school geek. I went to our Conservative shul’s Sunday, Tuesday, and Thursday program. In high school, I volunteered in the Hebrew school office. I went to Hebrew High School and to BBYO, and had my bat mitzvah in Israel on a Beitar teen tour when I was 13. But I never heard the word mikvah until after my sophomore year of college. Although I went to a public university on the west coast, I was recruited for a six-week summer experience, called the Ivy League Torah Study Program. The participants, about 50 Jewish college students, were invited to a camp in the Catskills, the women’s camp a few miles away from the men’s. We learned Chumash, Halacha, and Tanya (Hasidic mysticism); davened fervently; listened to tales of the Rebbe; sang songs about Moshiach; and ferbranged (drank schnapps) and melave malka’ed (drank schnapps late on Saturday nights). Though we wrestled for a while with the possibility of adopting a Torah lifestyle, only a few participants followed the staff back to Crown Heights at the end of the summer instead of going back to school. I think that for most of us, this culture was too different from our own backgrounds to feel like a good fit. In the end, most of us took the learning we’d acquired there and integrated it into a Judaism we were already comfortable with.

We had some wonderful teachers there who brought texts alive and showed us the beauty of Torah study. One of them, an older rebbe, taught a class, called The Jewish Woman. It involved the usual discussions of the Jewish home, the importance of Shabbat and Kashrut, and of course, the very Victorian-sounding Laws of Family Purity. Since none of the students was married or engaged, she didn’t go into a lot of Rabbi Kerrith, who has a rich and varied background in education and Jewish learning, was director of teen programming and family life educator at Congregation B’nai Jeshurun in New York City for five years. She oversaw the b’nai mitzvah program, produced educational content for the Hebrew School, led children’s services, created new teen programming, and led congregational trips to Israel and elsewhere.

She then went to rabbinical school at the Jewish Theological Seminary and was ordained in 2012. During rabbinical school she worked at the Jack Barrack Hebrew Academy in Bryn Mawr, PA, where she developed curricula for retreats and taught seventh-grade Judaic studies. She has been a youth group advisor, worked with homeless youth, staffed Birthright trips, and implemented a Rosh Hodesh girls’ group. She is currently senior Jewish educator at Tufts University Hillel. To meet Rabbi Kerrith is to hear her passionate vision for youth and family education at Adas Israel, both inside and outside our religious school.

The selection follows the search committee’s impressive and highly collaborative search effort. The committee comprised many parents of school-age children in our community, including students attending the Estelle & Melvin Gelman Religious School. We were particularly moved to see so many different parents and congregants participating in the search process. From joining discussion sessions, to hosting lunches and evening events, to observing each candidate teaching and interacting with Adas youth, the wide participation and valuable feedback was crucial to the search. It is a terrific example of the community’s devotion to its schools, passion for its children, and excitement for the future. All have the congregation’s deepest thanks.

We look forward to welcoming Rabbi Kerrith and her husband, as well as their two young children, to our Adas Israel family in just a few weeks. And we look forward to another year of Jewish growth and learning at Adas Israel.

detail about Hilchot Niddah (the laws of separation between spouses). But she made it clear that Halacha had something to say about marital sex. Basically, there was a time to, and a time not to. There was a system for keeping track of when to and when not to. And before it was time to, the wife immersed herself in a special pool of rainwater called the mikvah. The message she implied was that by living within this rhythm, a couple had better communication and hotter hooah.

It sounded good to me. I wasn’t sure about some of the other stuff I learned that summer, but I was definitely going to do the mikvah when I got married. It sounded beautiful and special. It sounded simple, like something I’d have in common with my ancestors, both the shtetl-dwellers and the desert sojourners.

Fast forward 10 years. I met Haim, my future husband, in Jerusalem. We dated for a few months and each of us was pretty sure that the other was marriage material. In a fairly vague discussion about our ideas of marriage, the topic of Niddah and mikvah came up. We just agreed that it was something that was an important part of a Jewish marriage and that we would commit to it.

So we each went to the mikvah before our wedding, and I continued to go on a monthly cycle. Haim even immersed when we began to conceive before each pregnancy. We’ve now been married for almost 15 years. Observing the practice of Niddah marks a steady, comforting, and important rhythm for our marriage. It definitely does for us what the Ivy League rebetzin said it would! The brief reference we made to it when we first met can now be articulated like this: Just as days of the year are holy (Shabbat and Chagim), and then there is the rest of the time, and just as there is food that is kosher because of how it was produced and how/when it is eaten and food that is unkosher, so, too, can our sexuality be elevated to a holy level by being together during part of the month and by refraining during the other part. And just like observance of Shabbat and Kashrut varies greatly from Jewish home to Jewish home, so, too, can mikvah and Niddah be practiced differently within each Jewish marriage.

Going to the mikvah every month is a discipline, much like yoga or journaling. If you go to one yoga class or write one journal entry, you may really enjoy it, but unless you commit to it as an ongoing practice, the depths of its benefits won’t be revealed to you. The meaning of mikvah was not apparent for the first time I went, or the 10th or the 20th. As an embodied ritual, it has multiple dimensions and every time I immerse, I think, chadesh yamenu k’kedem... renew our days... bring us closer to each other and to You.

Gan HaYaeled

As we do each year, the entire Gan took a “trip” to Israel to celebrate Yom Ha’atzmaut. Assisted by Ron Schlesinger (Adas volunteer extraordinaire), Rabbis Steinlauf and Feinberg, and David Polonsky (Adas’s communications and marketing director/acting assistant executive director), the children’s passports were stamped and the flight (“at an altitude of zero feet”) was uneventful—no doubt due in part to the preflight Tefilat HaDerech recited by Rabbi Steinlauf.

Once acclimated to the time, the children visited many parts of Israel. Classes were seen snacking on falafel, hummus, and pickles in a café; fishing and enjoying the aquarium in Eilat; squeezing their own fresh orange juice; and learning Israeli dances. New this year was a shuk experience where children could buy handmade beaded necklaces for shekels, and a kibbutz where children cared for babies in a children’s nursery, collected eggs from a chicken coop, and squeezed fresh orange juice in the dining hall.

At the end of the trip, all of the children came together to sing and dance Israeli dances. They were exhausted by their long journey, but said they would cherish the memories of their trip for a lifetime!

Still time to register: There are limited spaces left in the Gan for Sweet Summertime (our camp) and for the 2014–15 school year. Call or email the Gan, 202-362-4491 or ganhayeled@adasisrael.org, for more information.

Religious School

2014–15 Religious School Enrollment

Registration Is Now Open!

We are pleased to welcome our new Director of Education, Rabbi Kerrith Rosenbaum, to the Adas Israel community this July! And we are equally excited to kick off our Estelle & Melvin Gelman Religious School registration process! Please visit adasisrael.org/rsregistration to learn more.

For your convenience, you can now use the online form to pay the 50% deposit with a credit card, or you can still send the 50% deposit made payable to Adas Israel by July 1. All school families must be current in their tuition and synagogue dues to register for the 2014–15 school year.

To discuss your account, please contact Rita Nicholls in the accounting office, 202-362-4433 or rita.nicholls@adasisrael.org. For special financial arrangements, please contact Carole Klein or David Polonsky in the synagogue office.

Feel free to contact us if you have any questions!

B’Shalom,

Team Education @ Adas Israel; education@adasisrael.org

Message from Jill Epstein

The religious school year has come to an end, and so my term as interim director of education will also be finished at the end of this month. When I was asked to take over this year, my first reaction was that I was thrilled to be offered the opportunity to run a school in such a prestigious synagogue! I was filled with emotions—excited and a bit nervous because Adas Israel is the amazing DC synagogue with so much history. What an honor to join the team for a year!

The year has flown by, and, as you can imagine, coming into a religious school where I personally knew all the directors who came before me was a daunting task. But together with our wonderful faculty, we initiated some memorable programs that were a great success.

These were the She-hecheyanu moments:

Kitah Gan (Kindergarten): Parent/Child Shabbat Workshop
Kitah Bet: Parent/Child Havdalah Workshop
Kitah Gimel: Chagigat Siddur (Friday Night Service)
Kitah Vav: Generations Fair
Kitah Zayin: Original Reading at Garden of the Righteous
Parent Visitation: All Grades
Mincha becoming Tefillah
Healthy Snacks Provided by Parents
Gishron-Bet Yom Ha’atzmaut Centers
Student Participation in the Ambassadors Seder

I want to thank the entire Adas team, including the rabbis, Carole Klein and David Polonsky, the Board, the teachers, the education team, and the parents and students for welcoming me and supporting me on my Jewish journey. I am so excited that Rabbi Kerrith Rosenbaum is taking the reins; she will be an amazing addition to Adas Israel. May you go from strength to strength.

Thanks for listening, Jill

Talmud in June and July

With Rabbi Charles Feinberg

Wednesdays in June and July, 6:30–8:00 pm

Rabbi Feinberg invites all who want to study Talmud to join him on Wednesday evenings in June and July at 6:30 pm. The class will study the last chapter in Mesechet Yoma. Some topics to be covered are fasting on Yom Kippur, Jewish Education, Saving a life on Shabbat or Yom Kippur, Repentance, and Forgiveness. The Talmud texts will be translated, and no prior knowledge or experience is required. If you also want to experience studying a Talmud text, here’s your opportunity.

Havdalah

A Multisensory Sign-Off

On Friday evening, we sanctified the Shabbat with the kiddush ritual, warm candlelight, and a Shabbat feast; now, as we take leave of it after a night and day of divine rest, we once again pronounce the holiness of the day over a cup of wine.

The Havdalah (“Separation”) ceremony is a multisensory ritual involving our faculties of speech and hearing, sight, smell, and taste to define the boundaries that God set in creation “between the sacred and the everyday.”

Paradoxically, this act of separation is what connects Shabbat with the rest of the week. When the boundaries between the holy and the ordinary are blurred, the holy is no longer holy and the ordinary is left with nothing to uplift it. By defining the separation of Shabbat from the workday week, the relationship between the two is also established—a relationship in which Shabbat imparts its transcendent vision to the rest of the week, and the six days of daily life feed into, and are sublimated within, the sanctity of Shabbat.

Havdalah is held after Shabbat ends with nightfall on Saturday evening. “Nightfall” is the point at which it grows dark enough for three medium-size stars to become visible. Because making Havdalah involves actions that are discouraged on Shabbat (for example, lighting and putting out a flame), it should not be done until after Shabbat has ended.

To make Havdalah you will need:

• wine or grape juice.
• a cup or goblet with a plate or tray underneath
• spices—cloves and/or myrtle twigs are generally used, but any pleasant-smelling spice or plant will do; many households have a specially designed spice box to hold the Havdalah spices
• A braided candle, or two candles you can hold together to create one flame

One person can make Havdalah for a group of people, as long as all listen attentively with the intention to fulfill the mitzvah. The person making Havdalah should likewise intend to make the blessings for all the other participants as well.

Fill your Havdalah cup to the brim—to the point that the wine actually spills over, and lift it into the cupped fingers of your right hand (see photograph). Light the braided Havdalah candle.

The introduction to the Havdalah consists of nine joyful biblical verses that set the tone for a hopeful and joyous week to come.

Now raise your right hand—the hand holding the cup of wine—a little bit higher, and recite the blessing over the wine:

פֶּרֶּחֵת אֱסָפָה יָדָּנוֹת מֶלֶךְ חָוְלָה בָּלוֹם פֶּרֶּחֵת יָדָּנוֹת

Blessed are You, Lord our God, King of the universe, who creates the fruit of the vine.

Baruch atah Adonai, Eloheinu, melech ha’olam, borei p’ri hagafen

On Shabbat we each possess an “added soul.” Now that this extra measure of vitality and spirituality departs from us, we rejuvenate ourselves by smelling spices—smell being the most spiritual of the five senses.

Recite the special blessing thanking God for creating pleasant-smelling plants and pass around the spices for all participants to smell:

בָּרוּךְ אֱלֹהֵינוּ מֶלֶךְ הָעוֹלָם בָּרוּךְ הַמִּשְׁמָעְתּוֹ

Blessed are You, Lord our God, King of the universe, who creates various kinds of spices.

Baruch atah Adonai, Eloheinu, melech ha’olam, borei minei v’samim

The midrash tells us that Adam and Eve first discovered, benefited from, and thanked God for fire upon the close of the first Shabbat. For us, too, it is the first night of the week and the time to thank God for the gift of fire, without which our nights would be dark, gloomy and cold.

We use a braided candle with multiple wicks to represent the multiple types and uses of fire that we enjoy. (If you don’t have a braided candle, light two candles and hold them together so that the two flames merge.)

contribute to its workings.

Participation in governance offers considerable opportunities and hefty challenges. Each person serving on the Board, as an officer, or on a committee has the opportunity to learn how Torah informs his or her substantive work and the collaborative, trusting, and peaceful way that work should be performed. Each faces challenges of evolving with the times, responding flexibly to synagogue needs, letting go of the past to anticipate the future, sacrificing ego or loyalty to a particular group to serve our broader communal needs, and, as much as possible, walking in the way of Torah. Participation contributes significantly to sustaining our Jewish community and Judaism more broadly. Service in governance is a unique experience, a stimulating challenge, and a delightful privilege. My participation in synagogue governance has deeply enriched my Jewish experience and almost all aspects of my life.

We are doing more today than could fit in this article, but here’s a taste. One committee is searching for an executive director. We are forming another committee to search for a rabbi to fill the void Rabbi Feinberg will leave when he departs in mid-2015. The Board is beginning a conversation about the synagogue’s mission and how governance can function better to advance it. Above all, in each of our functions, every day we walk hand-in-hand with our clergy, striving to serve our members spiritually, sustain the wonderful gift of Judaism, and bring to reality an exciting Jewish future at Adas Israel.

What Community Means to Me

by Lois Fingerhut, Adas Israel Member

I have belonged to Adas Israel since the mid-1980s, and for many of those years I defined my connection as “a member” meaning we paid our dues, our sons went to Hebrew school, and we attended High Holiday services. In June 1991, my mother died quite unexpectedly at the age of 74, and for reasons I cannot explain, I started going to evening minyan to say Kaddish for her; I continued for the full year. Attending the evening minyan was comforting to me, and I began to feel a part of the Adas community, something I had not felt before.

Just four years ago my dad died; he was nearly 96. Again I went to evening minyan but this time was different . . . there was a group of women who all lost a parent within the same year, and most of us did not know each other before . . . and we became what Jenna, our then-wonderful ritual director, called the “Minyanettes.” We said Kaddish together, we went to dinner several times, and we knew we could count on each other to be there when needed. It was truly a unique and wonderful bonding experience, and I knew then that I was a part of the Adas Israel community. Attending minyan is so important. When you are there for a yahrzeit for your loved one, and there are fewer than 10 people there, it is upsetting primarily because Kaddish cannot be said, and, second, because it is so difficult to comprehend that in a congregation the size of Adas Israel more people do not find the time even once a month to come to minyan for the mitzvah of helping to make a minyan.

More recently I joined the Bereavement Committee and it has erased any doubts I have ever had about why we remain connected to Adas Israel. When I was first asked to consider joining the committee, I didn’t really know what the committee did. I didn’t know that committee members were referred to as chaverim and that that word means “friends.” Here’s what we do . . .

Chaverim meet with the family generally at their home to help with all of the arrangements. We are there to answer the family’s questions and to try to cushion them, as best we can, from the “business” of a funeral. With a partner, we work from a detailed checklist to gather information to be used for the death certificate, death notice, and all the details for the funeral service and burial.

Families choosing a Bereavement Committee funeral need never see a funeral director or go to a funeral home. A traditional Jewish funeral is provided under the Jewish Funeral Practices Committee of Greater Washington contract with Hines-Rinaldi Funeral Home (at a fraction of the cost of a noncontract funeral). Jewish tradition maintains that even in death the body is holy, and it is accorded the greatest of respect from death to burial. The Adas Tahara Committee performs ritual washing, dressing the body in simple white garments, and gently placing the body in a plain wooden casket. If the family wishes, family and friends are called on to “guard” the body as shomrim. For more information about traditional Jewish funerals and the JFPCGW contract, visit www.Jewish-Funerals.org, and for further information about the Bereavement Committee, call committee chair Edie Hessel, 202-244-7189.

In the past three months, I have had the privilege of working with two very experienced Chaverim, one of whom I’ve known for several years and another whom I’ve just gotten to know since joining the committee and working with her. In late January a very close friend died very unexpectedly and I was able to serve as a “chaver-in-training.” This experience was unique because we were equally helpful to my dear friend whose husband died, and it was rewarding for me to feel useful at such a grievous time. Just a few weeks later the mother of someone I know died and I served again as chaver-in-training. Most recently, I had the privilege of partnering with a chaver for a family that lost a young daughter. I knew that serving as a chaver this time would be even more emotionally difficult than previous times, but it was also rewarding to see how helpful we were in the most difficult of times. Most times chaverim meet with families they do not know, and this, too, is a wonderful communal experience.

These opportunities to help each other in times of greatest need are immeasurable. This is why Adas Israel is so important to me, why I want to always be a part of a community that is there for you in the best of times and during the most difficult ones.

Adas Israel can be proud of all we do to help our community, and we appreciate the coordinators of all the activities that synagogue members have developed over the years. We also must cite the contributions of the many volunteers who:

- Generously prepare monthly meals for Luther Place (N Street Village) residents
- Contribute nonperishable items for Ezra Pantry, give of their time to prepare food bags for the less fortunate for Thanksgiving and Christmas, or serve and entertain N Street Villages guests on Christmas Day
- Volunteer to help repair homes and veterans’ facilities at joint Adas/Yachad projects, including Sukkot-in-Spring, which Adas Israel congregants helped to create
- Take their place at vigils to protest atrocities in Darfur and the Cuban government’s unjustifiable incarceration of Alan Gross
- Participate in lively discussions about our shared history of civil rights with Masjid Muhammad or about issues of food justice and hunger in our community

The Social Action Council welcomes all who want to contribute their time and talent, no matter how much or how little you can. We encourage you to contact the activity coordinators listed below or Rabbi Feinberg at the synagogue to chat about how you can help.

We are also grateful to the congregants of Adas Israel for their generous financial support. Please keep the Social Action Fund in mind as you commemo-rate yahrzeits or celebrate s’machot.

Recite the blessing. Everyone now looks at the flame and enjoys the light. It is customary to lift one’s fingertips so that the flame’s glow falls on them:

ברוך אתה, יהוה, מלך העולם, ובעǹים כלם, ושבעת ימים טובים.

Blessed are You, Lord our God, King of the universe, who creates the lights of fire.

Baruch atah Adonai, Eloheinu, melech ha’olam, borei m’orei ha’eish

Drink the wine, but leave some wine in the cup. Put out the Havdalah candle by holding it over the plate and pouring from the remains of the wine over it. Dip your fingertips in the wine on the plate and wish everyone, Shavuah Tov (Good Week).

Motzei Shabbat (as these special hours following Shabbat are called) is a bittersweet time; there is sadness over Shabbat Queen’s departure, but she leaves a trail of joy and tranquility even as she goes. Hold the mood and savor it with your entire family as you slowly re-enter your weekday life. May the Havdalah ceremony be a treasured ritual to brighten up your home and senses as you prepare for a week of good works in the world.
As the calendar turns to June, advertisements for summer movies come into full bloom. Consider this column an advertisement for Jewish-themed—and free—movies in our library, ready to bring home. You can browse the selections either during a library visit or through the Adas website (click on the library link). Moreover, your friendly librarian is happy to chat with you about the movie inventory (librarian@adasisrael.org) and reserve anything you would like to borrow.

Here are a few out-of-the-ordinary choices:

For Seekers of Israeli Films

Fill the Void. Set in an ultra-Orthodox community in Tel Aviv, this film offers a new twist on the Jane Austen themes of love, family loyalty, and a young woman’s decision to marry. Eighteen-year-old Shira is delightedly beginning to entertain offers for an arranged marriage when her beloved older sister Esther dies unexpectedly in childbirth. As Esther’s grieving husband, Yochay, considers marrying a woman in Belgium who has agreed to raise his baby son, Esther’s mother seizes on an idea that would keep her grandchild in Tel Aviv. She proposes that Yochay and Shira marry. Shira and Yochay like each other, but the notion that Shira could replace Esther is difficult for them both. This nuanced, deeply human story is directed by Rama Burshtein, described as the first Orthodox Israeli woman to direct a feature film.

For Students of History

Orchestra of Exiles. This documentary recounts the remarkable, little-told story of the founding of the Palestine Symphony Orchestra, now called the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra. After Hitler came to power in 1933, Polish-Jewish violinist virtuoso Bronislaw Huberman put aside his career to devote himself to saving Jews and Jewish musical culture. As the Nazis fired Jewish musicians, Huberman began to audition the most talented for positions in what he dreamed would be a new world-class orchestra in Palestine. To finance his orchestra, he played numerous benefit concerts across the United States, including one where his priceless Stradivarius was stolen. At times, he tussled with David Ben Gurion over immigration certificates needed for the musicians to enter Palestine; Ben Gurion wanted the precious certificates for traditional workers instead. In the end, the heroic Huberman saved from the Holocaust about 1,000 Jews. Celebrated artists, including Itzhak Perlman and Joshua Bell (who now owns and plays Huberman’s recovered Stradivarius), provide commentary.

The Conspiracy. An all-star cast, including Kenneth Branagh, Colin Firth, and Stanley Tucci, recreates the infamous Wannsee conference of Nazi leaders in 1942 at a lakeside villa on the outskirts of Berlin. The opening scenes showcase the elegant preparations for the meeting—polished glassware, meticulously hand-lettered place cards, and a beautifully displayed buffet lunch. The aura of refinement stands in sharp contrast to the meeting’s sinister purpose—to reach agreement on the systematic extermination of the Jewish people.

For Lovers of Literature

Daniel Deronda. Based on George Eliot’s 1876 novel, this lavish BBC production follows Daniel Deronda, an earnest young English gentleman, as he becomes curious about Judaism and Zionism following his rescue of a talented Jewish singer from suicide. At the same time, Deronda is drawn to Gwendolen, a reckless, beautiful young Englishwoman. Hugh Bonneville (Downton Abbey) plays a malevolent, manipulative English lord.

Merchant of Venice. This year marks William Shakespeare’s 450th birthday, an apt time to revisit the bard’s plays, including this most difficult one for Jews. Playing Shylock in a critically praised 2004 film, Al Pacino embodies both the anti-Semitic stereotypes and the humanity (“Hath not a Jew eyes?”) that Shakespeare made integral to Shylock’s character.

World War II and the Holocaust.
As I am thirteen I sleep in the comfort of my own bed.
When she was thirteen she slept side-by-side next to strangers.
As I am thirteen I risk my reputation to help someone sitting alone.
When she was thirteen she risked her life to help a group of people that was alone.
As I am thirteen I become a bar mitzvah.
When she was thirteen she became a hero.
As I am thirteen I am happy when I get a new phone.
When she was thirteen she was happy when the burden of death was lifted off of her back.
As I am thirteen I try to stick to the status quo.
When she was thirteen she stood up for what she believed.
As I am thirteen I ride home from school in a car.
When she was thirteen she walked home from school in fear of what she would find when she got there.
As I am thirteen I eat plentiful food.
When she was thirteen she hid Jews who were lucky to get one meal a day.
As I am thirteen I am happy when clothes go on sale.
When she was thirteen she was happy when the Soviets came to liberate them.
As I am thirteen I have many friends.
When she was thirteen she had to choose her friends carefully.
As I am thirteen I have two parents who love me.
When she was thirteen she had one mom who was always scared.
As I am thirteen humiliation is a big fear.
When she was thirteen she stood out no matter what the cost.
When she was thirteen having the Nazis catch her was hers.
As I am thirteen I enjoy my company of my neighbors.
When she was thirteen her neighbors could not be trusted.
As I am thirteen I have little fear in Washington, DC.
When she was thirteen she lived in chaotic Warsaw, Poland, during World War II and the Holocaust.

Amb. Ryszard Schnepf; musical presentations by Adas youth and Netanel Drablitate; and a wonderful reading of a reflective poem from seventh-grade students (see below), this tribute to Mrs. Alicja Schnepf & Natalia Szczepaniak was an incredible success. Their courage and strength during one of the darkest moments in human history is now immortalized in the Garden of the Righteous on the Connecticut Avenue Plaza.

Our heartfelt gratitude goes especially to Judith Strauch who, through her tireless efforts for more than 20 years now, has preserved, enhanced, and directed the effort to honor and cherish this seminal annual synagogue event. This program would not be possible without Judy’s diligent and thoughtful work, year after year, and we are deeply grateful for her incredible commitment.

The Garden of the Righteous Program was initiated in 1992 by Rabbi Jeffrey A. Wohlberg to honor non-Jews who risked their lives to save Jews during the Holocaust. The honor takes the form of dedicating a plaque each year on the Sunday morning closest to Yom HaShoah to a particular “Righteous Gentile.”

As I am thirteen, I can hang out with friends.
When she was thirteen she could not have friends over.
As I am thirteen I hide stuff from my siblings.
When she was thirteen she hid people to keep them alive.
As I am thirteen I enjoy the company of my neighbors.
When she was thirteen her neighbors could not be trusted.
As I am thirteen I live with little fear in Washington, DC.
When she was thirteen she lived in chaotic Warsaw, Poland, during World War II and the Holocaust.
You are invited to your very own Second Bar/Bat Mitzvah!

Jewish tradition tells us that 70 years is a full life. Age 83 marks the time for a Second Bar/Bat Mitzvah (whether or not you celebrated your first).

Please join us in the Charles E. Smith Sanctuary on Shabbat morning, June 28, at 9:30 am. All those age 83 and above will be called to the Torah together for a group aliyah, a special blessing, and a Bar/Bat Mitzvah Certificate signed by our clergy. There is no need to prepare anything in advance.

You are an incredibly important part of our dynamic and vibrant Adas Israel community, and we look forward to honoring you. Please invite your family and friends to attend.

With love,
The Adas Israel Clergy

To participate, RSVP to Marcy Spiro, (202-362-4433, ext. 113, or marcy.spiro@adasisrael.org). If possible, please tell Marcy your Hebrew name and your parents’ Hebrew names when you respond. In addition, please let us know if you would like us to arrange transportation for you.

May God bless you from Zion.
May you see Jerusalem prosper all the days of your life.
May you live to see your children’s children.
May there be peace upon Israel.
