

Eileen and Jerry Lieberman will celebrate their 45th wedding anniversary in March, a 45 year journey of growth personally, spiritually, professionally and financially.

Jerry who has over 40 years experience in finance and management is a retired president of Alliance Bernstein, a global asset management and research firm headquartered in New York.

Eileen has dedicated her life to providing a Jewish home for the family while being active in not for profit work focusing on the inclusion, accessibility and well being of children with special needs

Eileen and Jerry through the years have served on several synagogue boards, Camp Ramah boards, and numerous Jewish communal organization in the US and Mexico.

As one would expect, much has changed on this 45 year journey together, but their core values and priorities have been consistent for much if not all of this time, especially, family, Jewish traditions, Jewish continuity, Israel and education. These values can relate back to their early beginnings when Eileen grew up in Long Beach, NY and Jerry in Hartford, CT at a time when in their communities belonging to a synagogue and following Jewish traditions were accepted as the "norm".

With three grandchildren, Samuel, Maya and Bela Feldman attending the Solomon Schechter School of Manhattan, it did not take long for Eileen and Jerry to appreciate the special and unique environment of the school and wanted to incorporate their values of philanthropy and education. By providing the financial resources to underwrite the STEAM Program at Schechter Manhattan Jerry and Eileen are hoping to establish a foundation for their grandchildren and the entire student body to be successful in the 21st century.
