Dear friends,

Mazel Tov to you, to tonight's esteemed honorees, board members, your fellow administrators, and dedicated faculty on marking the 50th Anniversary of the Schechter School of Long Island at this evening's Annual Gala.

Schechter is a renowned Jewish day school long known and respected for successfully providing the very best Judaic and general studies education to tomorrow's most promising leaders. The celebrated past and present of this venerable institution has inspired future generations of Jewish students to excel in gaining knowledge and understanding, and to emulate the sterling example set by this year's honorees to share their time, talents, and resources in ways that elevate their communities and our world.

In a society characterized by its fluidity and non-stop pace of progress, several constants remain unchanged: The importance of communal work; the value of generous, hardworking supporters; and the eternal gratitude due to those who provide these contributions.

We already see how the impact of your honorees' commitment to Jewish education has endured for the ages. They have each invested richly in the past, present, and future of the Schechter School of Long Island and continue to affect the lives of the countless students. Because of their dedication, these students are following the perpetual path and timeless traditions of the Torah as proud members of the Eternal Jewish nation.

It is my honor to share these thoughts of congratulations, and to offer my sincerest blessing to the deserving individuals recognized tonight to continue performing good deeds in good health, and together with those they love and care about most.

Sincerely,

ANTHONY J. SANTINO
